Resource person named "Sri. G. Sripathi" special talk on the role of dispute redressal commissions in consumer protection. IV. Workshops and Panel Discussions

"Yashoda Shrimati B H," but I can suggest some key points that could be covered in a talk on the topic of consumer law and education institutions in a workshop. Explain the fundamental rights and responsibilities of consumers, emphasizing the importance of consumer protection in the education sector. Discuss the relevant consumer protection laws and regulations that apply to educational institutions, such as refund policies, quality of education, and admission procedures. Explain how contracts between students and educational institutions are governed by consumer laws, and the rights of students in these agreements. Outline the procedures for students to resolve disputes or complaints against educational institutions, including internal grievance cells, ombudsman services, or legal recourse. Highlight the significance of transparency in educational institutions, including providing clear and accurate information about courses, fees, and facilities. Share real-life examples or case studies of consumer rights violations in educational institutions and how they were resolved.

The validity session of the event commenced with the presence of Shri AJ Paramasivaya, our esteemed Chief Guest. Shri Paramasivaya delivered an insightful and thought-provoking address. He emphasized the significance of the event's theme and highlighted key points related to consumer law and education institutions.

Dr. M. S. Sudha Devi, Principal of Saraswati Law College, Chitradurga, graced the event with her valedictory address. Dr. Sudha Devi shared her expertise and experiences related to consumer protection in the context of educational institutions. She encouraged participants to take an active role in safeguarding their rights and responsibilities as consumers.

The event concluded with the presidential remarks by Dr. K. C. Ramesh, Principal of SJM College. Dr. K.C Ramesh expressed his gratitude to all the participants, speakers, and organizers for their contributions to the event's success. He highlighted the importance of continued discussions on consumer law and its application in educational institutions.
